

THE goldsmith

MARCH 11 £5.50

Geneva Time Exhibition by Martin Foster
David Miracca by Gordon Hamme
Spring Fair Review by Marie Dill
Galvanize Sheffield by Michelle Clare

'DIAMONDS' REACHES A WIDER INTERNATIONAL AUDIENCE

Its slim size belies the impact of this book, which is fast establishing itself as the best guide of its kind to appreciating and learning about these precious gemstones. Following the success of the third English edition in 2009, 'Diamonds' has been translated into six other languages (Cantonese, Mandarin, French, Hindi, Japanese, and Russian), all of which will be available this March.

Diamonds have been cherished throughout history and will always continue to fascinate us. They originate from carbon, the most basic element of life, and undergo many transformations on their journey from the earth's depths to becoming prized objects of value and beauty. This book tells their story, complemented by the many full-colour illustrations that show the remarkable range of diamonds in all their shapes, sizes, and stunning colours.

Author Marijan Dundek has a passion for his subject and wrote this book to help promote a clear and informed understanding of diamonds as well as good practice in the diamond industry. In expanding its international reach, 'Diamonds' carries this high standard to a wider audience – and whether coming to diamonds for the first time or already experienced in the trade, every reader will find something of interest and value in its pages.

'Diamonds' has been recognized and commended by many top organizations in the field, including the Gemological Institute of America (GIA), which is now stocking the book, the British Jewellery Association, the National Association of Goldsmiths, the Gemmological Association of Great Britain, the International Gemological Institute of Antwerp (IGI), and the Antwerp World Diamond Centre. The book is available from many bookshops and online sellers, and in various digital formats including e-book platforms and iBooks for Apple devices.

Visit www.noblegems.com for more information. ■

